BY LAND AND SEA

Combined Attack on Port Arthur

JAPS LAND AT KAN CHOW

The Japanese Began an Investment of Port Arthur on Monday.

The Troubles of the Czar

Port Arthur Invested

Tien Tsin, May 18.—Port Arthur is invested by land and sea. Communication of every kind with the fortress has been entirely cut off and the Japanese are scattered all over the peninsula. A rumor persists that the Russian torpedo boats managed to get out of Port Arthur. The Japanese have been attacking Port Arthur since Monday.

Cossacks Harras the Japs

Chefoo, May 19.—The landing reconnaissance by the Japanese near Vladivostock was ineffective.

Four thousand Cossacks in scattered squadrons are harassing the rear of Gen. Kuroki's army as it advances. The Cossacks broke the field railway near Wiju and destroyed bridges and telegraph lines. Eighty Japanese at Wiju repulsed three hundred Cossacks who retreated, leaving sixty fallen. The Cossacks who escaped are being pursued and cut off. Japanese engineers have hurried from Seoul to repair the broken communications.

Rome, May 18.—A telegram from Tokio states that two Japanese divisions have arrived close to Mukden, cutting off Gen. Kuropatkin's line of retreat northwards.

Chefoo, May 19.—Eighty seven steam transports are leaving Kuroshima for the Liao Tung peninsula, with the reserves of the second army.

The third army is mobilized at Kuroshima and awaits the "boiling up" of the Russian squadron at Vladivostock.

Jap. Ships Reported Lost

Chefoo, May 18.—Russian refugees who arrived here today on the Anju from Port Dainy, say that the Japanese were bombarding Port Arthur on Monday. Russian officers who were on Golden Hill declared, according to the refugees, that during the bombardment a Japanese battleship and a cruiser struck mines and sank. The warships reported to have been sunk off Port Arthur are the battleship Shikishima and the belt armored cruiser Asama. The story is not believed here, but the Russians who brought the news insist that it is true.

Landing at Kan Chow

Tien Tsin, May 18.—Lloyd's correspondent at New Chwang has telegraphed under today's date as follows: "The Japanese division which landed at Kan Chow on May 16th under heavy fire of the Japanese men-of-war, is marching toward New Chwang, the evacuation of which by the Russians has been nearly completed. The Japanese are expected to arrive shortly. All is quiet at New Chwang and shipping shows progress."

The Japanese troops landed and are today advancing rapidly, even out flanking the Russians in their retreat to Tassineo and New Chwang."

Souln, May 18.—As a result of the battle of the Yalu the Japanese have buried more than 1,900 Russians and the work of interring the dead is still unfinished. Meanwhile ill and wounded prisoners continue to pour into the Japanese camp, where the men who surrender are given every possible succor.

London, May 18.—The Daily Telegraph's New Chwang correspondent, writing under the date of May 17th, says: "The Japanese with a large fleet of transports and warships, appeared at Kan Chow yesterday morning and opened a terrible bombardment, and the shore defences were silenced by four o'clock in the afternoon, the Russians retreating to Tashchau."

New Chwang, May 19th.—After driving off 1,500 Russians and destroying the railway the Japanese reembarked from Kan Chow the combined fleet heading southward.

Antung, May 18th.—Russian officers here accuse Gen. Sussulitch and chief of officers of his staff, with cowardice at the battle of Mulin Cheng. A prisoner asserts that at the most critical moment Sussulitch and his staff officers deserted the fighting line and the command devolved on the senior regimental officers.

St. Petersburg, May 19th.—Since the destruction of the battleship Petrovsk a great change has come over the Czar. He cannot sleep and has no appetite. His physicians, at wits end, advised a change of air.

WAR NOTES

Further details of the attack made on May 14th by the Chinese soldiers upon the railway and coal mines occupied by the Russians' administrative forces near Port Adams show the troops were a bodyguard of the governor of Port Chow, who led the attack in person. The governor ordered the arrest and beheading of the Chinese miners. The Russians were stripped and driven off naked. Their property was looted, and twenty thousand tons of driven off naked. Their property was looted, and twenty thousand tons of coal destroyed. A detachment of Japanese troops had passed the coal mines the previous day but did not touch them as private property. Another conflict between the Cossacks and Chinese bandits has occurred in the village between the Cossacks and Chinese bandits has occurred in the village of Chantzy. The bandits were led by four Japanese. The Cossacks, numbering thirty three, lost two killed, and succeeded in killing twenty five of the bandits, the remainder of them escaped. The bandits used dynamite bullets.

Mr. Osler's Railway
Exploits

Correspondence of the Toronto Star.

Ottawa, May 10.—The House apparently insists on talking about one railway or another. The force of habit is so great that when the G.T.P.R. is hung up for a few days a jerkwater railway in the Northwest becomes the subject of discussion. Two days which might have been spent profitably in supply have been squandered on the shortcomings of the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railway which runs from Regina to Prince Albert.

For the last two months the Q. L. L. & S. has been up against the order of nature. The spring freshets have carried away a bridge and the mail service, for which the railway gets $80,000 a year from the government, has gone to the bow-wow. Davis of Saskatchewan says that the mails wouldn't matter so much if the females who travel on the road were treated properly. It draws a harrowing picture of the discomforts a passenger on the Q. L. L. & S. must undergo. Immigrants who have the misfortune to buy tickets over this line are in great danger of being frozen. The management of the railway will not build fires in the cars save under orders from the Northwest Mounted Police.

But these hardships are of minor significance to Scott of Assiniboia and Davis of Saskatchewan. What they want to know is what Osler of Toronto did with the railway. Did he get away with it or did he not? This was the question they asked last year. And this was the question they brought up again this week, the deficiencies of the mail service giving them a handle. Each time Mr. Osler has replied that he is a director of the railway, but that he draws no dividends from it. He is on the board because he is the man that sold the bonds in England. All he got out of that transaction was a commission somewhat less than he would have received for selling the municipal bonds of Toronto.

The railway has a land grant as well as a subsidy—both the gifts of the Conservative government—and Mr. Osler is a director of the land company on a non-participating basis. His firm sells the lands on a percentage, but he is not what you might call a shareholder. In short, Mr. Osler is a director of both companies because he is the only man who has a full knowledge of how the wheels go round.

The senior member for West Toronto protests that there is no need for the people of the Northwest to look up their railways over night. He wouldn't lay hands on one—except on commission—for the wealth of the Indies. He was called on by Sir John Macdonald to finance the railway when it was in desperate straits, and he did it to the best of his ability.

Mr. Osler is not the man who uses soft answers to turn away wrath. On the contrary, he puts an edge on his remarks which culminates the temper of the House. In a word, Mr. Osler carries the ways and habits of a stock market bear into the proceedings of parliament and the result is a great deal of turbulence and disorder. Scott and Davis, particularly, refuse to take him at his face value. A prince of financiers he may be, but these two Northwest members are not respecters of persons. They do not pretend to understand a transaction which is as straight as a dog's hind leg and they persist in asking foolish questions. According to their calculations the Q. L. L. & S. cost six million to build, and the bonds were sold for nine millions and a quarter. What became of the three millions and a quarter difference? Who swiped the land subsidy, amounting to millions of acres? The railway company and the land company are ostensibly separate corporations, but might not it happen that the railway didn't do so to let its right hand know what its left was doing? Such is the crude and brutal logic of the Northwest. Not even Mr. Osler's standing in the community can put it out of countenance. Scott and Davis always get nervous in the presence of large sums of money, whether another man handles them or not. They want to know all about the operations of high finance, and Mr. Osler, though proud as Coriolanus, is hustled into the quizzing class.

The member for West Toronto ascribes it to enmity on the part of Scott and Davis, but they say it's simply their willingness to learn. At any rate the two Northwest members take as much delight in baiting Mr. Osler as two pups with a rag. When there is a three-cornered debate between Osler, Scott and Davis, the House is thrilled with lively repartees, and the proceedings bristle with points of order.

For instance, Mr. Osler rises to make a personal explanation. After a few oracular observations on the necessity of preserving the sanctity of Canadian securities in the London money market, he proceeds to examine the charges of Mr. Scott and his colleague. The gist of his argument is that his efforts on behalf of the Q. L. L. & S. are in the nature of a charitable undertaking. Then he passes to the character of those who are attacking him, and intimates that somebody is telling lies. He winds up with a delicate allusion to the skunks, ousers and yelpers who pursue honorable men, that ask nothing better than to mind their own business. This brings Mr. Scott to his feet. He swears that he won't be called a liar by anybody and compliments Mr. Osler on his fragrant reference to a bush acquaintance of his boyhood days. When Scott's vocabulary fails, Davis is at his elbow to prompt him and has him a poisoned arrow from time to time. Between the two the debate becomes so exciting that the question arises, What will the House do when there are ten members from the Northwest instead of four?

Meanwhile, the member for West Toronto knows his moustache and glowers in his seat. He has said his say, poured out his vitriol, but these are new wounds and the rules of the House prevent him from striking back. It transpires, however, that he has defenders. Osler is a man to stand in with. Consequently, when Scott of Assiniboia, lacking something more biting, refers to him as "this man," Clancy of Bethwell rises to a point of order.

I contend, Mr. Speaker, that the member for Assiniboia has no right to call the member for West Toronto a man. He must be addressed in the third person." Clancy is apparently in receipt of a new and strange light in the person of common nouns.

Mr. Scott agrees that Clancy's objection is not unreasonable. "If," he replies, "the member for Bethwell thinks that the member for West Toronto shouldn't be called a man I withdraw the term."

Mr. Scott concludes by admitting that he is only a poor man selected by the people of West Assiniboia as their representative and not to be deterred from airing their grievances even if he should give offence to the gentleman from West Toronto and the corporations with which he is associated.

Mr. E. F. Clarke praises the financial skill and reputation of his deskmate and rubs saline on his scalding humor. The Speaker makes a mild suggestion that he should not intervene in a personal explanation, but the junior member for West Toronto manages to get it all in before he sits down. He sums it up as a foul and vicious attack, an outrage, a grievous libel. He hints that Mr. Osler has incurred the displeasure of the Northwest members by opposing the G.T.P.R.

"His words," Mr. Clarke declares, "should bring conviction to any fair-minded man."

"Who got the land? Who got the money?" This from Davis.

"It was only when Sir John Macdonald called him in that he became identified with the company." Mr. Clarke states his brief with vigor.

"Yes"—Davis is still skeptical—"he came in to get the money."

And so the quarrel runs on. At a quarter to six the Deputy Speaker takes the chair, and chaos becomes a little thicker with rulings from Courtland and elsewhere. After four hours' debate the incident is closed and nobody is any the wiser.

Where the War Is Going On

(Special Correspondence of the Vancouver Province.)

As the locality of the war now going on in this Eastern Hemisphere may be somewhat of a puzzle to those who reside six or seven thousand miles distant perhaps a brief geographical sketch of it may be of interest to your readers.

The Korea itself, geographically speaking, is really a continuation of Manchuria, which consists of three large provinces, namely, Hsingchien, Kirin and Shingking. It is three times the size of England, Scotland and Ireland, and is as large as France and Germany put together. It was formerly in possession of the Manchus. The Russians, making the suppression of the Boxer an excuse, kept possession of it. At the present time its population is about fifteen million, and I believe there is room for six times that number. The Yalu river separates it from the Korean Empire in part of its course. It is along this river that the Russians are concentrating their forces, and it is through the Shingking province that the great Transiberian Railway is continued down to Port Arthur and the Gulf of Pechili. The Korean Empire extends from latitude 32 degrees to 42 degrees north, a distance of six or seven hundred miles. It is bounded on the east by the Japan Sea, on the west by the Yellow Sea, and is separated from Japan by the Strait of Korea. A railroad runs from Fusan, the most southerly town of the Empire, part of the way to its capital, Seoul, whence a branch line runs to Yen-mulgo.

This capital of Korea is an accumulation of filthy huts, situated in a filthy morass, and inhabited by the filthiest inhabitants. I gather this from those who have been there. Mukden, of which we have heard so much, is the capital of Shingking province, on the Transiberian Railway. Hsingchien lies south of Mukden. The Russians have at the present time about 50,000 men on the Yalu, and as many more hold the forts and the passes through the mountains. Forts have been erected every five miles along it. Some Russian cavalry have already crossed the Yalu river, passed the Korean city of Anju, and appeared close to Peking. The Russians say that they are making the most of their railroad facilities, and are bringing over three thousand men daily with baggage and supplies; but this must be taken "cum grano salis."

La Balaik is an usual the sticking point. This vast sheet of water is said to be 20,000 feet deep, and is surrounded by walls of rock, making it almost impracticable to cut a railroad around it. At this time all transportation is carried on by sleighs, owing to the enormous depth of the water. The ice is rarely more than two

WESTERN NEWS

The Canadian is the name of a new publication, the first copy of which has reached the office of the Bulletin. The new paper is printed in magazine form, and is published in New York. Its objects are set forth in the following paragraph: "It will always endeavor to promote that cordial spirit of commercial and social amity that now exists between the United States and Canada, and on questions in which Canada and the United States are interested it will always be fair and impartial, with a desire for truth rather than sensationalism. It will be essentially a news journal, and its editors bespeak for it the assistance of all Canadians in securing items of interest for its readers."

—Prince Albert Advocate: A sad drowning accident took place on the Little Red river on Telford Lumber Co.'s drive or Monday last, through which Jack Burr lost his life. The unfortunate young man had just started on his first day's work at this occupation, and jumping onto a log, to cross the stream, he fell off, and went under the thickly packed logs. He was seen to come up once before going under for good. Search was at once made, but it was next day before the remains were recovered, and then brought to town. Interment was made in the Presbyterian cemetery on Saturday.

—Advocate: Saturday afternoon last Isidore Lafimbaise broke from the Prince Albert jail in a most daring manner, and made good his escape. Lafimbaise was engaged with three others in the rear of the prison pumping water to the tanks supplying the building, and received permission to visit an outbuilding, and was temporarily out of sight of his guard. It is supposed that he slipped unperceived behind the building, and keeping close to the high board fence to the corner, there scaled the wall, and took to the woods which border the yard at that point. The alarm was given immediately, and four mounted policemen, town Chief Jones and Assistant Besby and a couple of jail officials, commenced the chase but up to the present moment no trace of the fugitive has been discovered. This prisoner has rather a hard reputation. He was one of a bunch of seven who were transferred here from Regina last winter, and was serving a sentence of two years for horse stealing and escaping from jail.

—Discussing Provincial autonomy the Montreal Witness says: "Many people believe that while the southern districts will sustain a population several times larger than could possibly find sustenance upon the poorer land towards the international boundary. Those having this faith are not afraid of the climate, as they fix the future seat of authority far north of Regina, and tell us that the Northern districts would resent being bound by arrangements made in their behalf by authorities that will not represent the public opinion of that part of Canada in days to come. It is not very likely, therefore, that autonomy will be favorably considered by the present government in any shape. When the question really does come up for settlement it will be found that the country at large is interested in the question as to whether or no the province as now proposed is not going to be too large."

—Blairmore Times: Last Saturday Bishop Legal, of Prince Albert, accompanied by Father Lepine, of Macleod, made a visit to the different towns in our district. While here they selected a site in Blairmore, on which to build a home, and temporary place of worship, for a resident priest who will be appointed for this district. Building operations are to be commenced as soon as material can be delivered and the residence pushed to completion at once.

—Western Globe: Lacombe breeders had no trouble in carrying off several first, second and third prizes at the Annual "Pure-Bred Horse and Cattle Show" held at Calgary on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. The following list of prizes won by our local shorthorn breeders goes to show that we have some of the finest stock in the Territories. In the Lacombe district: Two-year-old male shorthorn class, A. Fernie Man Killed

Fernie, B.C., May 14.—A fatal accident occurred in No. 2 mine, Coal Creek, at 7:30 last night, in which a driver named Wm. E. Patton met instantaneous death. Patton was on the front car and when going down an incline in the tunnel the line became wrapped around his foot, jerking him from his seat. He fell in front of the car, breaking his neck and one leg. He was quite dead when picked up. The facts all point to a purely accidental death.

Deceased came from Westville, Pictou County, N. S., where his relatives reside. His grandfather is part owner of the Amherst Iron Works in that province. He was 22 years of age and was a clever young man in matters pertaining to machinery, and he possessed a diploma in electricity. He had planned to leave the mines at the end of the week.

WAR NOTES

The second Japanese army, numbering 70,000 men, left Chinampo on 83 transports May 12th. The soldiers were crowded on board the vessels in the closest manner, one ship having 3,800 men on board. The men were so closely packed between the decks that exercise was impossible and very little air was obtainable. But, in spite of the discomfort there was no grumbling. Every precaution was taken to prevent news of the departure of the army from leaking out. The residents of the place were strictly disciplined and no one was allowed to enter or leave the town. Three Americans, however, succeeded in escaping from Chinampo on board a junk. Twelve days later they reached Chensulpo.

It is expected that when the Japanese armies meet at Tatung Pass they will number 100,000 men.

Subscriptions to the Japanese loan of $50,000,000 in London, just closed, was over subscribed twenty times. There was a great rush to subscribe and an enormous number of applications for small amounts.

The latest official reports show that the Russian force which recently attacked Anju, formed part of Gen. Mandaroff's flying column of 700 Cossacks from Liao Yang. They were covering twenty-five miles daily. Prisoners of this party captured by the Japanese say the Russians had only twelve days' provisions, and half the men refused to fight, and that the Japanese sharpshooters picked off several of the Russians.

According to an official report the Japanese casualties in the fighting at Anju on May 10, amounted to over 500 men. One officer and twelve men were killed and the others were injured. The Russians engaged numbered 700 and were from the fifteenth Cossack regiment. They reached Liao Yang by train, and marched thence to Anju. "A majority of the enemy dislodged fighting the Japanese," the official report says, and "their morale is low."

The assertion that the Japanese troops had violated the Red Cross rules as provided by the conventions of Geneva and the Hague, by firing on a train of wounded at Polanden, about forty miles north of Port Arthur, on May 6th, has been proved to have no foundation on fact. On the contrary, according to an investigation made by the military authorities at the request of Minister of Foreign Affairs, it appears that there was any violation of the rules upon the occasion mentioned, the guilt must be charged to the Russians themselves, and not to the Japanese. The officers in command of the Japanese column advancing on Polanden, report that they approached their place on May 6, then discovered a train moving northward from the direction of Port Arthur, which bore none of the marks required by the Red Cross, and had Russian troops on board, which opened fire, to which the Japanese troops quickly responded and took train stopped and displayed the Red Cross flag. The Japanese troops immediately stopped firing and moved forward to investigate, when suddenly the train started ahead full speed and escaped.

The Russian army paper is disinclined to believe that Hai Cheng is the Japanese objective. It says the division of guards now marching in that direction probably will serve the interests of Liao Yang, followed by the forces now at Su Yeng Chow and combining with the division reported to be at Somaizix, make a combined attack on Liao Yang. The Novoe Vremya's expert analysts think the forces advancing against Liao Yang are 100,000 men with 50,000 horses and 270 guns and believes the Russians are retiring upon their base. "It is a critical moment," the paper continues. "General Kurovskin is allowing the enemy to take the offensive, watching for a favorable moment to strike a decisive blow."

Smallpox and enteric fever are increasingly affecting the first Japanese army. Four thousand men have suffered invaliding, while others are at the hospital stations in Corea. Vice-Admiral Alexieff, in a note to the Tartar general in Manchuria, states that although Russia's navy has suffered reverses, a change will come. Russia has now the field 200,000 soldiers ready fit to the end. The vice-admiral proceeds to say that the Russians have won decisive battles in Corea and are marching on, conquering all, and are bringing with patriotism.

Vice-Admiral Chukhin has been appointed to command the Black Sea fleet. Admiral Chukhin is one of the most distinguished naval strategists of Russia, and his appointment probably foretells some attempt to get the Black Sea fleet through the Dardanelles, so that it may join the Baltic fleet and proceed to the east.

It is understood that about $1,000,000 of the new Russian loan will be spent with New York customers of the French underwriters, and that the issue price will be 99.

feet thick, and therefore not to be trusted to carry long military trains of cars loaded up with men and baggage. The ice, however, is now thawing, and will very shortly be open for the huge railroad ferryboats.

Coal and provisions are already getting scarce in spite of what is said to the contrary. Mr. Albert J. Beveridge, Senator for Indiana, in his very clever and interesting book lately published, entitled The Russian Advance, gives a very highly-colored description of the Russification of Manchuria. He tells of the numbers of Russian towns which have sprung up and are springing up through this richly endowed country, built of brick and stone, with all modern conveniences, standing side by side with the old Chinese ones composed of mud and rough wood huts, rambling, sickening to the eye factories, miry, slushy, hideous with filth, and in wet weather reeking with slime, composed of elements offensive to both sight and smell. He writes most favorably of this huge province as a field for emigrants! Perhaps, however, Mr. Beveridge is somewhat blinded by patriotism, for he is so proud to say in all the restaurants bread made from American flour; sugar-cured hams from the United States; American canned fruits; canned salmon from the Columbia river; canned meats from the Central States; condensed cream and milk from Illinois, etc. Neither British nor Canadian produce appears on the menu, strange to say. The Russians are pouring emigrants into the country and giving them a "leg up" of the same time. One after all can hardly regret the means used by a civilized nation to convert a country as prolific as Manchuria from a waste, howling wilderness into a garden of roses—a land heretofore inhabited by Boxer bandits. But all this civilizing enterprise requires money, and a vast number of soldier-guards to sentinel the whole length of their railroad. The conquest of Asia is, and has been since Peter the Great's time, the great ideal of all Russian monarchs. The Russians are utilizing the Chinese brigands in the present war and doubtless they will have as much trouble and shave just as cruelly as the Turkish bushwhackers did in our war in the Crimea. It is said there is a want of harmony existing between Admiral Makarov and Gen. Kuroptkin. The admiral wanted rapid action, and the general more cautious movements.

If the Russians are hard-pressed at Vladivostok it is probable they will set fire to their beautiful and substantially built city and retreat to Nakhisk. On the fifteenth of this month the ice in its harbor commenced to thaw. The fear of the Russians is that owing to the number of Japanese in the Chinese army, they may prevail on the Celestials to attack their troops and cut off communication; but the Chinese still "straddle the fence" and the influence of the war party is just now predominating in political circles, but which side it will ring in with is very problematical.

The report comes that the Koreans in Musan in North Korea are in a very pitiful condition from want of food, & supplies from Pukhando having been stopped. This last descent of the Japs on the ships at Port Arthur was cleverly planned, and as successfully carried out as their other naval demonstration.

I spent last evening with two very interesting and intelligent men, one a colonel in the British army and the other a commander in the British navy, both on long leave and acting as special correspondents for two of the leading London papers. The latter gentleman had the same day arrived from the neighborhood of Port Arthur, and had witnessed what was transpiring there.

He and several more "specials" chartered a steamer and made a dash for the front. When they sighted the Japanese ships they followed at a distance in their wake till they reached their destination. What he said was this: Two Japanese cruisers left the fleet and made straight for Port Arthur Harbor, the fleet having been anchored just out of sight. As the cruisers approached the harbor four Russian battleships and several cruisers steamed out to engage them. The Japanese ships, however, swam around and steamed out to sea again towards their own ships, pursued by the Russian squadron, led by the ill-fated Admiral Makarov in the Petrovavlov. When, however, they perceived the trap that had been prepared for them, they hurriedly put about and steamed at full speed back for the shelter of their forts, thus refusing once again to accept the Japanese challenge to battle. Had the Russian ships continued on their course as the Japs had anticipated, they would have managed to get between them and their port. As it was, the admiral's flagship the Petrovavlov, at full speed, crashed onto one of the Japanese mines which had been secretly laid during the darkness of the preceding night. My informant told me it was a Japanese mine and not one of their own. He further told me that the double explosion which they all saw and heard must have been from the battleship's own torpedo having been forced up into the interior of the ship, tube and all, by the violence of the concussion below it, which at the same time exploded it. All battleships, I think, carry their own torpedoes and tubes. The double explosion was most terrific in force and awful in its destruction. It seemed to paralyze for the time all who heard and saw it. Many of the poor fellows might have been saved from drowning, but the Japs, who were far in the rear, did not dare approach in boats the spot in such close proximity to the Russian warships, and the Russians themselves seemed too scared to put out to their relief. Before the explosion occurred the Petrovavlov was seen to lower a boat, and the supposition is that it was this boat which saved the few from drowning. After all was over the Japanese, with their usual courtesy, lowered all their flags to half-mast. When in pursuit the Japs hoisted an immense flag on their forecast, a flaring red sun, with a fringe of rays like the tentacles of an octopus on a white ground. Makarov is a great loss to his country. He was looked upon as the Russian naval trump card.

This mine business must strike humanitarians as being a very pitiable kind of warfare. It must be repulsive to the feelings to think how the civilized powers of Christendom should jubilate over the instantaneous destruction of hundreds of innocent men who had no chance given them to defend themselves. A distant enemy touches a button and the tragedy is upon us.

"Twas not in the battle; no tempest gave the shock;
She sprang no fatal leak; she ran upon no rock.
His sword was in its sheath, his fingers held the pen,
When Makarov went down with twice four hundred men."

The mine is a drum-shaped receptacle anchored about from fifteen to twenty feet below the surface of the water by a "mushroom" anchor, such as is used to anchor mooring buoys in harbors. This drum is packed with gun-cotton or one of the deadly explosives now made with picric acid, taving four times the power of black powder. The explosion is caused by an electric spark from a dry-cell leech-panch battery. A copper pendulum is fixed so as to swing in close proximity to the battery, its upper end being attached by a wire to the charge, and the lower end of the copper rod, or pendulum, hanging free. When a ship strikes the mine it tilts over on its side with great force. The swinging copper pendulum is brought into contact with the pole of the battery, thus completing the electric circuit and exploding the mine. These infernal machines, commonly termed mechanical mines, are anchored about thirty feet apart, and are strung across the harbor's mouth or any narrow strait or all naval ports, or fortified places are used the most elaborate and delicate instruments for locating enemies ships as they approach the mines. The exact spot can be told where she is and how heading, and the moment she is passing over one of the mines a button is pressed and the mine is exploded.

The Japs use the Whitehead torpedo, which is expelled from the tube by compressed air, and kept in rapid motion under water also by compressed air at 150 to 200 yards per second, which is detonated automatically.

I have heard many discussions as to the value of the Whitehead torpedo, will suffice the Whitehead torpedo will travel and taking the mean average of the calculations, it should run from 150 to 200 yards, or nearly correct. But there are some larger than others, and a twelve-inch torpedo would not travel as far as a fifteen-inch one.

OAT SEEDING FINISHED

C. M. Nalms returned yesterday from a trip to Bruderheim having been absent since Monday. Seeding in the settlements beyond the Fort is practically completed. The wheat is on the prairie nearly two weeks behind oats and all round and the farmers are busy preparing the ground for barley. The roads are in very good condition. The water in the river is so low that the ferry at the Fort has great difficulty in getting near the bank. Forty minutes were occupied in crossing with the stage on Monday.

THE JAP AT HOME

Mr. Frederic C. Welch of the Daily Statesman of Salem, Oregon, who has been in town for the past week in connection with his paper, has written for the Bulletin the following interesting article on Japan, which country he visited last summer:

The present war raging in the Far East between the "Eight Little Islands" of the Pacific and the oppressive Russians, is the topic for many arguments and opinion. Those who have not had the privilege of visiting the beautiful islands of Japan, "the land of the rising sun," wonder how such a small nation can withstand and even overwhelm the mighty forces of Russia. The success of the Japanese can be seen in the three words, i.e., "love of country." The Japanese are a most loyal people and life to them is a mere nothing when the welfare of their country is at stake. A Japanese mother would give up the loss of a son in battle, rejoices over the fact that her son had lost his life in defense of his or her country. It is also a part of the Japanese religion for every man to fight for his country if needed.

The Japanese success may also be attributed to the fact that they are a very intelligent class of people and ever ready to learn. Some people are apt to judge Japan by the class of Japanese that come to this country, the middle and upper classes and educated people, but are ignorant what is known in the Orient as the "Cossacks," the lowest class of laborers. The writer had the privilege of visiting Japan last year and while there could but notice the thorough military manner in which the Japanese army is conducted. They are accurate and swift in every movement which alone gives them power over the slower moving Russians.

Japan has been making very rapid strides towards civilization during the past few years and is continuing to do so. The English and American ideas The English and American schools and colleges are educating thousands of young Japanese, who after mastering the mysteries connected with engineering, law, medicine, dentistry, law etc., go back to their own country where they either practice their profession or teach in the many universities of Japan.

It is very likely that the war will be the means of introducing more influence in some sections of Japan. At the present time this robe animal is not in use whatsoever. The streets are so narrow that it would be impossible for a great many horses to be used.

The carriage or rickshaw is not much larger than an ordinary carriage and is a two wheel arrangement.

The rickshaw is drawn by a coolie and the motion he gives to the carriage when running is most peculiar to the novice who is riding. The Japanese are a most polite people and Indians very friendly.

There is no doubt that the present war between Russia and Japan will bring Japan closer than ever to all European nations. People of this country and of the United States are very apt to judge all Japan by the few lower class Japs who are on this continent. This should not be, for the little fighting man is becoming more like a European every day and the time is surely coming when all nations will give the little Islanders the glad hand.
